HERBERT DAMMANN GmbH | PRESS RELEASE DATED 29 September 2026

HERBERT DAMMANN GmbH: Operations continue as normal – customers continue to place their trust in DAMMANN

For immediate release

Buxtehude, 29 September 2026 – HERBERT DAMMANN GmbH is successfully continuing its ongoing restructuring, thereby laying the foundations for a stable long-term future for the company.

For customers and business partners, one thing is paramount: production, spare parts supply and after-sales service are continuing as planned. Orders are still being accepted, and machines are being manufactured and delivered as usual.

Today's creditors' meeting unanimously supported the restructuring course already embarked upon and resolved to continue business operations. Discussions with potential investors are progressing well but have not yet been concluded. Furthermore, thanks to the restructuring measures already implemented, there is a possibility of successfully completing the restructuring under our own steam via a restructuring plan. The restructuring plan is already showing positive developments.

Full focus on customers, products and service

HERBERT DAMMANN GmbH continues to focus on its core business: the development and production of high-performance machinery for crop protection, as well as for airport and municipal applications.

This positive trend is already evident in the order intake. Following an initial period of caution on the part of customers, new orders are coming in again. The order book has remained stable so far.

Dr Jörg Grau, Chief Executive of HERBERT DAMMANN GmbH, states:

“We can see that our customers have confidence in DAMMANN's future development. Orders for new machinery are coming in again and our order book remains stable. This confirms our belief that there is a market need for our products and solutions.”

Restructuring opens up prospects

The restructuring has been consistently implemented over the past few months. Cost structures have been adapted to the current market situation and further measures have been introduced to improve profitability in the long term.

The executive management remains in place and continues to run the company on a day-to-day basis. They are supported in this by restructuring experts. The process is being overseen by a court-appointed trustee.

Trustee Prof. Dr Hendrik Heerma states:

“DAMMANN has consistently implemented the necessary restructuring measures and has thereby created additional room for manoeuvre. There is now an opportunity to shape the company’s future development and create viable structures for the future.”

An established manufacturer with clear prospects for the future

HERBERT DAMMANN GmbH has been operating as an owner-managed family business since 1979. With a modern machine park, the company develops and manufactures high-precision solutions for the application of liquids, making it one of the established manufacturers in the industry.

Its well-known products include the Profi-Class Tandem series of trailed sprayers and the DAMMANN-trac brand of self-driving sprayers with working widths of up to 48 metres.

Today, the company employs around 105 staff and most recently generated a turnover of around 35 million euros.

The current restructuring is, in particular, a response to the prolonged difficult market situation in agriculture and agricultural machinery. DAMMANN has used this development to systematically align the company with current market conditions.

Our customers continue to place their trust in DAMMANN: production is ongoing, new orders are being accepted, and machinery, spare parts and service are available as usual. At the same time, we are working consistently to position DAMMANN for sustainable and long-term success.
